Dr. Nicole Turner joined Incyte Diagnostics in 2019. She is board certified in cytopathology, anatomic, and clinical pathology.

Dr. Turner obtained her medical degree at Oregon Health & Science University in Portland. Following her medical schooling, she completed a residency in anatomic and clinical pathology. During her residency, she taught pathology courses for first- and second-year students which involved leading labs in gastrointestinal, renal, and ovarian pathology. She also presented autopsy cases and demonstrated gross pathology to medical students.

After her residency, Dr. Turner completed a fellowship in cytopathology. She went on to complete a fellowship in surgical pathology from the University of Washington Medical Center in Seattle.

Dr. Turner has presented pathology cases at tumor boards and has collaborated with clinicians and radiologists.

Outside of medicine, Dr. Turner enjoys spending time with her husband and children. Her interests include traveling, photography, scrapbooking, knitting, cooking, and hiking.
